JOHNNY WONDER

A. Food that is left in a warm, damp place for several days often becomes covered with a fuzzy patch of mold. Mold is really a tiny, simple plant. It does not grow from a seed, but from tiny bits of powder called "spores." The spores are carried about by air currents. These spores in the air settle on damp foods and grow into new molds. If you examine a patch of mold with a magnifying glass, you will see a tangle of thread-like growths that cover the moldy food. Molds are useful because they help break up waste matter, and fertilize the soil.

You can win a World Almanac if your question is selected. Send your name and age to JOHNNY WONDER, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1254, Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
